Student named to NACHPE

Second-year student Fernando Gonzalez has the distinction of being one of two full-time students enrolled in health professions schools to be appointed to the National Advisory Council of Health Professions Education (NACHPE), according to Dr. Ralph L. Willard, dean.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Willard said, "Gonzalez was nominated by TCOM to the American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine and the AACOM then chose him as representative of all nominations from the 10 colleges of osteopathic medicine in the United States. He will be contributing the student viewpoint to the council."

The NACHPE, which was provided for in the Health Profession Education Assistance Act of 1976 and was passed by the 94th Congress, advises the secretary of health, education and welfare on regulations and policies governing the administration of health professions education programs. It also reviews applications for support of programs to improve the training of physicians, dentists and other health professionals.

The national council is composed of 12 representatives of health professions schools including six persons experienced in university administration and at least four representatives of schools of veterinary medicine, optometry, pharmacy, podiatry and public health; two full-time students enrolled in health professions schools, and six members of the general public.

Discussing his appointment, Gonzalez said, "I'm excited about the appointment primarily because it gives one such an incredible opportunity to learn about certain areas of our life that most people do not get a chance to experience. I think it will be a rewarding experience personally. I just hope that I will be a competent, productive member of the group."

Gonzalez is a graduate of MacArthur High School in Irving and an honor graduate of The University of Texas at Arlington.
